BILLINGS.

Billings is the chief manufacturing, jobbing, financial and general business center of an enormous empire, embracing part of nine counties in Montana and five counties in Wyoming. It is situated on the transcontinental Northern Pacific Railroad, 900 miles west of the Twin Cities and 600 miles east of Spokane, and on the transcontinental Gulf to Sound Great Northern Railroad, 500 miles northwest of Denver.

The author of this directory estimates the population to be, January 1, 1914, 15,000. The population in 1900 was 3,211; in 1910, 10,031.

Billings was platted by the Northern Pacific Railroad in 1882. It was named in honor of Frederick Billings, formerly President of the road. It was then at the head of navigation of the Yellowstone River, but since the advent of so many railroads, navigation has ceased. So Billings is now the hub of railroads extending in ten directions: the Northern Pacific, east and west; the Great Northern, north; the Burlington & Northern Pacific, with four branches, south and southwest; the Burlington, southeast; a railroad twenty miles long extending northeast, known as the Billings & Central Montana, and a Northern Pacific branch 100 miles long, extending northwest. Trains departing each morning for the terminus of these branches and returning each evening give Billings a constant transient population probably number 1,000 or more. The city is provided with fifteen hotels for the care of these, the chief of which are the Northern and the Grand. The railroad facilities, with their 24 passenger trains each day, make the city extremely easy of access; but in addition to these, Billings is the gateway to the Yellowstone National Park, and is in the direct line of travel to Glacier National Park. So, situated on the Yellowstone trail, which gathers at this point traffic also from the Denver-National Parks trail, and many tributary automobile roads, the city is a rendezvous for automobile tourists.

Billings is already the greatest jobbing centre in the State of Montana and paid the railroads in 1913 for freight shipments on merchandise more than any other city in the State. There are located here some 15 jobbing houses of various kinds, including machinery, groceries, produce and hardware, and it is estimated that the business done in hardware and machinery alone in 1913 was more than $3,000,000.

The largest manufacturing concern in the city is the beet sugar factowry, costing $2,000,000, and the only one north of Colorado between Minnesota and the Pacific coast. It paid something more than $1,501,000 for the beet crop of 1913 and employs during the campaign season about 450 people.

Billings has also a large and modern foundry; a gas plant costing $250,000; a creamery which has an output of 40,000 pounds of butter a month; a small packing plant which handles dressed beef, mutton and pork; a flouring mill, daily capacity of 600 barrels; largest sash and door factory in eastern Montana; planing mills; a large brewery; a mattress factory; cement block plant; a brick plant, and many other small but prosperous and growing industries.

Eight banks care for the financial interests of the domain tributary to Billings. They have a combined capital of $650,000 and deposits in 1913 of more than $5,000,000; clearings from Jan. 1, 1913, to Nov. 6, were $18,360,367.27, as compared with the same period in 1912, which showed $14,772,262.91.

illings has the only street car system west of the Missouri operating the Edison storage battery cars, which run trolley or cable.

cational facilities aside from the public schools, innual training school, business college and Polytech-e which is practically as large as the State Agricul-ge. To take care of public education there are ten within the city limits and six in outlying districts, 75 teachers. The public schools in the Billings dis-enrolled at the beginning of the school year, 1913, gain of 200 over the previous year, the school census a juvenile population of 3,922.

The principal public buildings are a federal building costing $150,000; a court house, $105,000; city hall, $50,000; a $90,000 high school building has just been completed; the Parmly Billings Memorial Library; Masonic Temple, $100,000; a Y. M. C. A. building, $85,000; Elks' Club building, $150,000. The Masonic Temple and Elks' Club buildings are among the most expensive and elaborate in the west. The Babcock theatre, a exceedingly artistic and luxurious play house, is a noted one and secures all the leading attractions touring the country. The city is well supplied with churches, nearly every denomination is represented.

The City has employed a Park Commissioner and is spending thousands of dollars in the improvement of parks and boulevards.

Two daily Associated Press papers, the Billings Gazette and Billings Evening Journal, supply a metropolitan news service. The city improvements are keeping pace with the growth of the city.

All the principal business streets are paved, and three extensive improvement districts far paving are now being completed. The street lighting is unsurpassed, 50 tungsten lamps supported by ornamental posts light each block of the business district.

Hydro electric power is cheaper in Billings that at Niagara Falls. It is even used for cooking purposes in many Billings homes, and serves to turn the wheels of every form of industry. In the Billings district are some of the richest coal mines in the country, giving the city cheap fuel.

With its natural strategic position and the start which the city has secured, it is believed by the best authorities that Billings is to become the chief city between the Twin Cities and the Pacific coast.

Although the city depends to a large extent for its prosperity on its commercial development, its chief and most secure foundation is in agriculture. It is the center of one of the largest irrigated districts in the world, where beet raising and many branches of intensive farming are practiced. Recently farming in the uplands without irrigation has proven a wonderful success, and settlers from every direction have flocked to this section of Montana and taken homesteads. Formerly stock raising was the principal interest. It is now, however, dividing its supremacy with the small farmer, and the combination of these two adds to the diversification and multiplies the wealth. Miles and miles of wheat fields have taken the place of great areas formerly used only for grazing. On the numerous irrigated projects intensive farming is coming strongly into vogue, and the day is not far distant when every 40 acres of irrigated land in this enormous district will support a family. Millions have been invested in government and private irrigation projects and all are proving great successes.

One of the chief assets of the Billings country is the climate. The altitude of the city is 3,115 feet; the precipitation. 14.96 inches; the mean annual temperature 47.2 degrees; that of summer being 69 degrees and of winter, 29.2 degrees. The sun shines during some part of the day of more than 340 days each year. The generally cool and invigorating atmosphere with an abundance of sunshine makes the climate exceedingly delightful, and is responsible for the fact that the death rate here is 7.4 per cer thousand—one of the lowest in America.

ABSTRACTS OF TITLE

Our Abstracts are accurate and complete.

Our Service is prompt

We photograph the records. No other system of abstracting is so accurate as this. We are the only Abstracters in Yellowstone County using this system. We have Photo-Copies of the records in our office. They cannot be wrong. From these we write our Abstracts. With these we compare our Abstracts after they are written. This service costs no more and it's a whole lot better.

CONVEYANCING

We have exceptional facilities for doing this work. We know how. We have photographs of the records and Abstract Indexes in the office. There's no guess work. There's no delay. We have two Notaries Public, both experienced in drawing deeds, mortgages, contracts, and instruments of all kinds.

STREET AND AVENUE GUIDE.

Explanatory.

Excepting Broadway a thoroughfare when running north and south is designated an avenue; when running east and west a street.

All Avenues and Streets in the following guide are compiled alphabetically irrespective of their relative positions.

Broadway and an imaginary extension of the same along the right of way of the Northern Pacific Railway and East and West Eleventh streets have been made initial points of numbering and the divisional points in the application of compass designations to the streets. Thus to the first block north or south of Eleventh street the numbers 1 to 99 have been assigned; to the second block 101 to 199; to the third block 201 to 299; to the fourth block 301 to 399; to the fifth block 401 to 499; to the sixth block 501 to 599: to the seventh block 601 to 699; to the eighth block 701 to 799; to the ninth block 801 to 899; to the tenth block 901 to 999; to the eleventh block south h of Eleventh street 1001 to 1099; to the twelfth block 1001 to 1199; to the thirteenth block, 1201 to 1299: to the fourteenth block 1301 to 1399; to the fifteenth block 1401 to 1499.

To the first block east or west of North or South Broadway, 1 to 99; to the second block 101 to 199: to the third block 201 to 299; to the fourth block, 301 to 399; to the fifth block, 401 to 499; to the sixth block, 501 to 599; to the seventh block west, 601 to 699; to the eighth block, 701 to 799; to the ninth block, 801 to 899; to the tenth block, 901 to 999.

All Avenues crossing Eleventh Street have the prefix North when north and the prefix South when south of the same: all Streets crossing Broadway have the prefix East when east and the prefix West when west of the same.

CARBON COUNTY

Carbon County, organized in 1895, soon after the segregation of the territory comprising the county from the Crow Indian Reservation, has been rapidly settled and its growth has been marvelous. Bounded on the south by the Beartooth Mountains, from which spring several large rivers, and numberless streams, the lands of Carbon County are especially well watered. Its soil is productive and its climate healthful and invigorating. While essentially a farming, fruit-growing and stock-raising county, Carbon is also the chief coal-producing section of the Northwest. It has the largest, best known and most inexhaustible coal measures in Montana, which are extensively operated, thus affording a permanent and constant home market for the products of the farm. The presence of these three industries—each flourishing, and helpful to the others—insures the prosperity of the whole community.

Twelve coal mining plants are in operation in Carbon County, and employ an aggregate of 2,000 men.

Two million tons of coal are annually produced in Carbon County. During the past year extensive development work has been done at Red Lodge, Washoe and Bear Creek, and the coming season will show a very large increase in the production and in the number of men employed.

Carbon County has yet a large acreage of unappropriated Government land. This land is almost all on the divides between the principal streams, which traverse the county from the mountains on the south, emptying into the Yellowstone River on the north. These streams are the two Rosebuds, Rock Creek and Clark's Fork and their tributaries. With the exception of Clark's Fork all of them have heavy falls, so that the water can be carried by ditches over the higher lands between with comparatively slight expense. They furnish ample irrigating water for all the settled lands and then their full capacity is not nearly reached, as is proven by the fact that the rights to the water of but one stream, Rock Creek, have been adjudicated.

Of the unappropriated public land, much is suitable for dry farming. Most of this land is between Rock Creek and the Rosebuds. The soil is principally a black, sandy loam, and abounds in springs and small streams.

Dry farming has been successfully practiced for several years in the southern part of the above territory, and the yield of crops has compared very favorably with adjoining irrigated lands. The principal crops are wheat, oats and barley. Yields average for oats from 60 to 90 bushels, wheat 30 to 50 bushels and barley from 40 to 45 bushels per acre.

There is one grain elevator and numerous grain warehouses throughout the country.

There is a creamery and refrigerating plant in Red Lodge.

Joliet has a flour mill of 200 barrels capacity. The plant was erected at a cost of $50,000. There are other good locations for flour mills which will be utilized when the wheat supply is increased.

The most important agricultural section of the county is the Clark's Fork Valley, which is one of the most productive portions of Montana, furnishing as great a variety in products of agriculture and horticulture as may be found in the State, from wheat to corn. The valley, varying in width from four to [illegible] miles, is nearly one hundred miles long, extending from Laurel, Mont., to Wyoming. Transportation facilities are furnished by a branch line of the Northern Pacific Railroad from Billings.

Sugar beets are extensively grown and are shipped to [illegible]

Billings beet sugar factory. All grains and grasses yield prolifically. Apples, plums, pears, peaches, watermelons and cantaloupes are grown to perfection. Even a little tobacco is grown for home consumption. The cantaloupes are said to be equal in flavor to those grown at Rocky Ford, Colo., and if they were grown in quantities so that shipments in carload lots could be made at regular intervals they would be eagerly bought by residents of Montana at prices assuring large profits to the growers.

Fruit grows to a good size, is excellent in flavor and appearance, is free from worms and possesses splendid keeping qualities. In this valley, near Fromberg, is the celebrated Clark orchard.

On irrigated lands the principal crops vary with the altitude. In the southern central portion of the county, where the altitude is about 5,000 feet, the chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, potatoes and timothy hay, all of which yield above the average, and are of exceptional quality, as instanced by oats weighing from 40 to 45 pounds to the bushel. In the lower altitude, to the above mentioned crops may be added alfalfa, hay, sugar beets, and apples.

These irrigated lands are largely supplied with water from individual rights, or an interest in a neighborhood ditch, there being comparatively few incorporated ditch companies, and the water right sells with the land. Such lands sell from $25 to $50 per acre, until the fruit belt is reached, and then the price advances to $100 to $150 per acre, the prices depending upon location, fitness for special crops and improvements. Such lands are selling at prices which will seem low a few years from now. Unirrigated lands can be bought for $10 per acre or less.

Red Lodge, the county seat, is the largest town. The city owns its own waterworks, which is a most excellent system.

Other thriving townse are Roberts, on railroad, in the ce of an excellent farming and dairy country, from which shipped more farm produce and cream than any other statio the county; Luther, on West Red Lodge Creek, which is t center of a thickly settled and prosperous community; Jo on lower Rock Creek, which is the trading point of a rich fa ing and fruit country and where a waterworks system and electric light plant are being installed; Fromberg, in the ce of the richest part of Clark's Fork Valley; Bridger, in the sa valley, having both agriculture and coal mining as the basis its prosperity; Belfry, a railroad junction and trading pl and Bear Creek, where are five coal mines.

There is a strong probability that oil will be found in Cla Fork Valley. In the mountains are mining claims, showing of gold, silver, lead and copper.

As a place for an outing Carbon County offers many att tions; the climate is healthy; the streams are filled with t the foothills furnish fine hunting of small and feathered ga while all kinds of large game are to be found farther back the forests, the streams, the lakes and the mountains c some of the most picturesque scenery in America.

Columbus, Stillwater County, Montana

Columbus, the county seat of the new county of Stillwater, is a growing little city of about 1,000 people. It is located on the main line of the Northern Pacific railway in the Yellowstone Valley, and geographically it could not have been more centrally located to serve the people of Stillwater county as a county seat. It is the distributing point for all the small inland towns lying both north and south of the railroad.

It is elegantly lighted by electricity and has unlimited power service for domestic and commercial use. It has now in the course of construction a water system for fire and domestic purposes that, when completed, will be a credit to a town many times the size of Columbus.

It has four hustling mercantile houses, two substantial brick two drug stores, two lumber yards, three livery barns, a first class bowling and pool hall, two good hotels, two restaurants, a large and up-to-date blacksmith and machine shop, barber shop, and other minor business houses and tradesmen. The religious organizations are well represented. The Masons, Odd Fellows and Redmen lodges are well represented and have elegant and commodious lodge rooms. The Stillwater Club, a commercial and social organization, have most elegantly furnished club rooms and a large membership, and a hearty welcome is always extended to strangers. Above all, Columbus has the distinction of having one of the best public schools in the State. It has also within its limits a modern stone quarry, the products of which are shipped to all portions of the Northwest. Columbus sandstone is noted for its beauty and durability far and wide.

It has two thriving newspapers, the News, the official organ of the county, and the Democrat. Both have able men at the helm and give the public better reading and their advertisers more publicity than the ordinary country town weekly.

The professional men are well represented and among them are competent physicians and surgeons and able lawyers.

Among its residences are many beautiful and modern ones. Cement sidewalks and crossings are laid over the entire town and the streets are well graveled. Among its business houses are found many substantial buildings of stone and brick.

It strade zone reaches a radius of over 30 miles in every direction, and from a business point of view Columbus has present better opportunities than most of the towns in the state.

Columbus, Stillwater County, Montana

Columbus, the county seat of the new county of Stillwater, is a growing little city of about 1,000 people. It is located on the main line of the Northern Pacific railway in the Yellowstone Valley, and geographically it could not have been more centrally located to serve the people of Stillwater county as a county seat. It is the distributing point for all the small inland towns lying both north and south of the railroad.

It is elegantly lighted by electricity and has unlimited gas service for domestic and commercial use. It has now in the course of construction a water system for fire and domestic purposes that, when completed, will be a credit to a town many times the size of Columbus.

It has four hustling mercantile houses, two substantial brick two drug stores, two lumber yards, three livery barns, a first class bowling and pool hall, two good hotels, two restaurants, a large and up-to-date blacksmith and machine shop, barber shop, and other minor business houses and tradesmen. The religious organizations are well represented. The Masons, Odd Fellows and Redmen lodges are well represented and have elegant and commodious lodge rooms. The Stillwater Club, a commercial and social organization, have most elegantly furnished club rooms and a large membership, and a hearty welcome is always extended to strangers. Above all, Columbus has the distinction of having one of the best public schools in the State. It has also within its limits a modern stone quarry, the products of which are shipped to all portions of the Northwest. Columbus sandstone is noted for its beauty and durability far and wide.

It has two thriving newspapers, the News, the official organ of the county, and the Democrat. Both have able men at the helm and give the public better reading and their advertisers more publicity than the ordinary country town weekly.

The professional men are well represented and among them are competent physicians and surgeons and able lawyers.

Among its residences are many beautiful and modern ones. Cement sidewalks and crossings are laid over the entire town and the streets are well graveled. Among its business houses are found many substantial buildings of stone and brick.

It strade zone reaches a radius of over 30 miles in every direction, and from a business point of view Columbus has present better opportunities than most of the towns in the state.

PARK CITY.

Park City is located on the main line of the Northern P Ry, 25 miles west of Billings and 18 miles east of Colu the county seat, in a very fertile part of the Yellow valley. The townsite is perfectly level, the buildings painted and well kept, while the large shade trees, the s green lawns, the beautiful park, and the clean, well g streets all lend their charms to make it a pleasant pla which to live.

The land around Park City is of the very best. Wi abundance of water for irrigation, the richest of soil, a good growing climate the crops of sugar beets, alfalfa, etc., are always excellent and the yields surprisingly h Here we find the oldest and best orchards, the highest per of saccharine matter in the sugar beets, the banner c oats per acre (150 bus.) and the largest yield of potatoes acre.

Lying north of and tributary to Park City, is the great L Basin country which is being rapidly settled. The s made by this country last year in the face of the drouth p that it is beyond the experimental stage and that succe sure where the work is done in accordance with s principles. The wheat crop last year went from 18 bushels per acre which, when we consider the unusually season, was a good showing indeed. Under favorable c this so-called dry land will yield far greater returns. T may still be had good dry land homesteads near Park C

Here you will find a community of generous, broad- intelligent people so thoroughly imbued with the western of hospitality that you will feel at home from the ve day. Exp, Northern. Tel W U. Edward W Peck, pos

Big Horn County, Montana

Big Horn county, one of the youngest counties of the Treas-e State. had its beginning the 13th day of January, A D 1913, 12 o'clock, noon, which is evidencced by a certificate issued the Secretary of State from his office in Helena, following an ction held January 6, 1913, for the segregation of portions Yellowstone and Rosebud counties to create the county of g Horn. It has an area of about 5,000 square miles and an sessed valuation in round figures of $4,650,000. The develop-nt of the territory embraced in this county dates back to the ting apart of certain lands in the Crow Indian reservation, own as the "Ceded Strip," for the purpose of settlement. n of it homesteads, and later, certain lands were sold at blic auction upon the deferred payment plan to the highest dder. That additional lands will be set apart for sale or tlement is assured by the fact that the land office has just ued a notice declaring a number of sections subject to home-ad entry on or after Dec 20, 1913.

Even in its infancy, the soils of Big Horn county produce ps equal to the best, and in many cases better in quality, n is produced in its sister counties. Especially is this true dry land wheat, which grades No 1 Northern and conse-ntly demands the highest market price per bushel. As the ivated area increases from year to year, Big Horn county shortly take its place in the front rank of the grain pro-ing counties of the state. From the waters of the Big Horn Little Big Horn rivers, with their many tributary creeks, taken sufficient water to irrigate some 200,000 acres or e of land—about 125,000 acres of the same now being under ivation. This embraces both government and privately ed ditches, the latter being represented in the 32-mile canal wn as the Two Leggins Ditch, and the canals of the Big n Low Line Ditch Co and the Farmers' Ditch Company. gation assures the production of crops without any thought failure and the long growing season makes it possible to ure crops here, such as corn, tomatoes, melons of all kinds and kindred crops which a few years ago it was thou possible to grow successfully in this state, and the yi acre is much greater than can be grown in other sectio inter-mountain country. Sugar beets thrive here as n else, as do potatoes and all kinds of vegetables, as we kinds of grains and grasses. The "Pride of Big Horn C is "King Alfalfa," which grows as though wild, day an in sunshine or clouds, and produces from four to teven to acre, in three and many times four cuttings per seaso more do we wonder where we will market this crop, quality of Big Horn county alfalfa is known afar in the and there is now in course of construction at Hardin a m the purpose of grinding into meal and mixing the same mill has a capacity of 10,000 tons per season, but owing lateness in getting started this, its first season, only 3000 will be ground this year.

In addition to the irrigated lands there are hundre thousands of acres of dry or bench lands of great p properties. Many experienced farmers have demonstra ing the past five years that "dry farming," as it is term be carried on profitably, regardless of the amount of ra and with as great a percentage of profit on the investm ordinary farming under irrigation. Throughout the bench of the county the average rainfall is greater than in portions of the state, which accounts in a measure for th creased production over other sections. Wheat averag high as 42 bushels and oats 72 bushels to the acre the p season, when the rainfall was below normal. Above th farm lands are thousands of acres of hill lands which untold pasturage for grazing purposes. In some sectio lands are used in common by the resident farmers.

In addition to Hardin the county contains the fo thriving towns: Crow Agency, 13 miles east of Hardin quarters for the government officers managing the Crow reservation; St Xavier, 23 miles south of Hardin, wh Jesuit fathers maintain an Indian school; Lodge Grass, a ing little town about 35 miles east of Hardin; Wyola extreme southeastern portion of the county, and Fo miles north of Hardin. Extensive stock interests are tained in the range country tributary to Kirby, Sarpy, and generally throughout the eastern and northeastern of the county, where thousands of cattle, horses and sh ranged.
